Passed unanimously at 1.15 o'clock, p. m. December 20th, 1860.

After nightfall the central portion of the city became a perfect blaze of light from the innumerable bonfires and fireworks of every description. Many private residences and places of business were brilliantly illuminated—among the latter was the Mercury Office, in front of which was a large transparency inscribed with the words: "One voice and millions of strong arms to uphold the honor of South Carolina."

The following gentlemen were elected by the Convention as Commissioners to the Federal Government: Hon. Robert W. Barnwell, Ex. Gov. John S. Adams, Hon. James L. Orr.

6.] HONOLULU, JANUARY 1, 1848.

The Poet's Corner.

For the Friend.

FAREWELL TO THE NORTHWEST COAST.

Cold thou cold land, with thy mountains of snow,
From thy beauties forever I go,
I shall my vision at sunrise behold
Snow-capt hills glisten like mountains of gold—
I see yon moon o'er thy glaciers arise,
Thousands of stars spangle o'er the bright skies.

I shall I ride o'er thy billowy breast,
The fierce howling storm hath oft rock'd me to rest;
All pleased I leave thee and bid thee farewell,
Often far hence in the tropics to dwell—
I never forget thee, though glad I depart,
Best of earth's spots art thou to my heart.

Here, while the storm rush'd fierce through the skies,
I first opened my slumbering eyes;
While its fierce power human aid could not check,
Barks and boats were reduced to a wreck,
I snatch a lost sheep from a watery grave
Omnipotent arm was stretch'd forth o'er the wave.

Here I first learnt that Jehovah was love,
Christ to save me left his glories above;
Here I first learnt my dear Savior to know,
To love him and serve him while dwelling below.
The great boundless blessings endear thee to me,
We in my heart shall dwell ever for thee.

Those who henceforth shall thy beauties survey
Number and feel thou art purer than they,
Man's sinful foot on thy breast hath ne'er trod,
Sinful acts ne'er hath polluted thy sod,
Forever thy Maker's great wonders shalt tell—
Beautiful landscape, forever farewell!

"Isaac Hicks." W——.

For the Friend.

PARDON THROUGH CHRIST.

WRITTEN BY A SAILOR.

Hark! those notes of glorious measure
Calling on my spirit's ear,
Richly fraught with heavenly treasure,
Come my fainting soul to cheer.
Soul, they say, thou art forgiven,
Christ from sin hath set thee free,
And to serve thy God in heaven
There's a place reserved for thee.

Faint not, but speak to sinners hard'ned,
Tell them of atoning blood,
Show them how they may be pardoned
Through the glorious Lamb of God.
Unfurl the glorious gospel banner,
Wide the bleeding cross display;
Live thou in a faithful manner,
Point to heaven and lead the way.

The Seamen's Friend.

Judge Andrews' Address.

The following communication is an abridgement of some remarks read by Judge Andrews, before a meeting of the Oahu Temperance Society, December 18, 1847. The subject discussed, is one of importance, and the facts presented are most encouraging to the friends of temperance and seamen. The character of Honolulu, as a seaport, has, of late, been much improved, and the facilities for recruiting vessels, and other advantages, render it the most desirable port in the Pacific.

The question has reference to seamen. That there is less intemperance among them than formerly, appears from the following facts:

1st. There is less visible drunkenness or intoxication in the streets than formerly.

2nd. There is less disturbance in places of public resort, between seamen themselves, and between seamen and natives.

3rd. There are fewer public rows.

4th. There is said to be less business in the police court, arising from intemperance, than formerly.

5th. It is reported that two individuals have discontinued the sale of spirits because the business is unprofitable.

If these facts exist, there must be some cause or causes for it. Though there may be a diminution of intemperance, let no one think that it has ceased. There is still drunkenness—there are still places to make people drunk—the police court is obliged to punish men for drunkenness—and some grog sellers make money by it. But for the diminution above referred to, the following reasons have been assigned:

1st. From the quality of the liquor, it is almost impossible to get drunk. It is said to be well diluted with water before it leaves foreign countries. On arriving here, it is, perhaps, diluted again by the retailer, and perhaps still further when drawn off into bottles, and before sold by the glass. Something else is put in the place of alcohol to give it a head.

It is said that a seamen comes ashore on liberty with a dollar. He usually finds a friend whom he invites to drink, or a loafer or two will make themselves his friends for the time being. Liquor is sold at 12 1-2 cents per glass—his dollar will procure but eight glasses, these, considering the want of alcohol, and the part drank by his friends, or drank, perhaps, at different times through the day, fail to produce intoxication, and hence there is not so much intemperance as formerly.

Some deny that this is a good re cause those who wish to get drunk pend on their dollar, but bring thei or something else, and buy as muc produce the desired effect.

2nd. It has been said there is provement in the characters of t sell grog. That they keep quiet h intend to have no immoral practic nection with their establishments.

3rd. Another reason assigned istence of the excise law which req
